MRS WHITE'S REPORT

This has been an exciting year, since it has brought about an important step in the development of the House System. Each House is now responsible for organizing a program of social service. In its first year, this experiment has proved very promising and students have been involved in a variety of activities. Fry is developing a program of support for the Elizabeth Fry Society, Keller is involved in promoting Canadian Guide Dogs for the Blind, Nightingale has helped run Can Drives for the Ottawa Food Bank, Fry collected books for Ronald MacDonald House, and Wilson ran a series of hunger lunches to raise funds for famine relief in Africa.

In addition, a hospital visiting program has been organized, and 25 girls regularly work at the St. Louis de Montfort Hospital. While it is gratifying to observe the noisy manifestation of House Spirit on occasions such as Sports Day, it is even more satisfying to see students in both senior and junior schools working together to develop a sense of social responsibility and service. We look forward to watching the students develop these programs in the future, for, while the students receive plenty of support and help from staff advisors, it is our aim to encourage the students to take the main responsibility for organizing these programs.

Mrs. White
Headmistress

It is February, and the snow is deep outside Elmwood, yet it is also time to write best wishes to Elmwood 1984-85 and to the Samara Committee who will chronicle this special year in the life of the school. Many tasks now are reminders that the end of the year is approaching and that soon good-byes will be said. Good-byes, however, are not always sad. For many of you 1984-85 will have been a special year in your school life. Perhaps it was a year in which you reached a goal, mastered a long practiced skill, recognized your own existence, or decided to take responsibility for your own learning. We may say good-bye to 1984-85 but our best wishes go with you.

Not until it has almost ended, and you look back, can you see the over-all pattern of the school year. This has been an exciting year for the junior school - a record number of students, each one taking part in the new computer studies programme. A rollicking production of "Toad of Toad Hall" filled the gymnasium for three performances at the end of January.

Our innovative and highly successful ski programme launched in the second term took juniors and seniors to camp Fortune every Friday. Grades two, three and four have had their own swimming programme in the spring term.

Juniors have figured prominently among the prize winners at the science fair and the music festival; the junior choir gave a number of concerts at Christmas time and were an important feature of Junior Entertainment.

Students in grades seven and eight from Ashbury and Elmwood had several dances - the grade eight students from both schools will be honoured with a dinner and dance arranged by the grade 8 mothers in June.

Trips away from the city were organized for grade fives to Montreal, grade sixes to Brown Lake to study winter life - for grade sevens to Foley Mountain Conservation Area and Kingston, and for grade eights to Quebec City. Where do we go from here? Well, next year we will be welcoming grade one students, making the academic spectrum complete!!

All these activities represent the careful planning and enthusiastic participation of the members of the staff of the junior school. To each of them, my most sincere gratitude and affection.

GRADS

SUE BREWER

- Senior prefect (alias Brew, Brewski . . .) has graced and paced the halls of Elmwood school for four years. Sue is known for her interesting and sometimes strange perception of life's everyday happenings. Sue's position as chapel monitor in grade 12 has lead her to seek a new and interesting position at the Vatican, in Rome. She hopes to become the "Senior Chapel Monitor". Her service as Senior Prefect has helped her to comply with the pressure she will meet at the top!?!? When Sue is not studying, she can be found and is considered an avid supporter of "BREWER'S RETAIL". - "Honest you guys, we own Brewer's Retail . . . you don't believe me?" All fun aside, we wish Sue B. all the best in her studies and career as a nurse. "May the smell of bedpans ALWAYS irritate your nostrils!"

RUBY EGGARHOS

"A teaser? Teasers are usually rich kids with nothing to do. They cruise around looking for planets which haven't made interstellar contact yet and buzz them."

"Buzz them?"

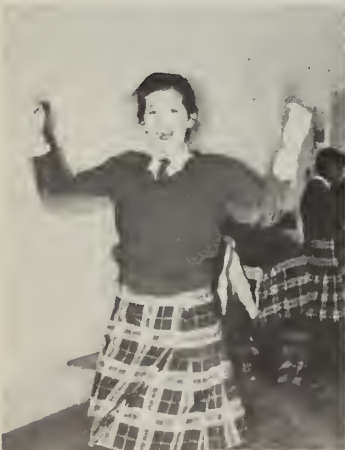

"Yeah, they find some isolated spot with very few people around, then land right by some poor unsuspecting soul whom no one's going to believe and then strut up and down in front of him wearing silly antennae on their heads and make 'beep beep' noises." D.A.

The "GREEK" pretends to be a normal well developed emotionally stable adolescent. HAH! We all know the truth! Ruby is in reality the Phantom Zonko Cabbage thief, arch enemy of Capt. Bob. What's Left? MARILLION! Life ambition: To be the Girl From Ipanema. (Before my sister gets there!)

SUSAN EVANS

Sue Evans is one of our newer additions, having come to us in grade twelve from picturesque and memorable Kingston. She is presently one of our Junior Liason officers, having proved her qualifications last year (when she was in grade six also). Unknown to most people she has a fetish for parking lots (where are we going to go?), hairy eyeballs (she collects them), and whipping people with wet spaghetti. Our mellow element is very fond of sleeping through anything and almost anywhere (except school of course). She is known for her "incredible" experiences in cars (postal trucks should be locked up).

MICHELE FRIEND

Michèle's deep love and concern for physics, philosophy, needle-point and other realities of life (or lack thereof) has resulted in endless sleepless nights for this I.B. survivor. And, though she did not quite make it through Algebra, I am confident (convinced) that Michèle will one day discover the true nature of the 4th dimension. Michèle will no doubt be remembered for her sudden profound statements regarding this concept, among other things - the unending influx of her rare and valuable mathematical books, consecutive WEEKnights on the town, and her cold stare which one can expect if one dares to continue writing a test beyond the shrill sound of the bell . . . (not to mention weekend philosophy meetings and of course, Peter).

I wish you happiness in all that you do and yes, Michèle, you may ask Calculus questions during Functions.

PUI JAYANAMA

Who in grade thirteen knows every song that ever hit the charts and a veritable biography of every band, group and lead singer? Who dresses with incredible personal flair and produces REAL art for the common room walls that puts the Bowie posters to shame? The answer, of course, is Pui. Pui came to us three years ago straight from Bangkok and the artistic taste of our class has improved steadily since her arrival. She is one of those amazing people who VOLUNTEER to help at school functions - the prefects are ever grateful to you, Pui! Pui has been an enthusiastic supporter of school dances and last year's Samara. Don't forget us when you're back in Bangkok because we certainly won't forget you!

KIRSTEN KEARSLEY

Due to popular demand Kirsten Kearsley has been cancelled. Seriously folks, Ingrid's presence has contaminated Elmwood like for quatro years (has it been that long?). Being the head of Keller this year, she has also managed to keep us in the dark about her love life. Hah! (Shall we list them off, or shall you?). Girls, have you always had trouble keeping off the weight? Do they call you thunder thighs at school? Well let us introduce to you the KIRSTEN KEARSLEY DIET; I bag of Corn Puffs plus 1 bag of Hickory Sticks and chug down a half a litre of chocolate milk (you know the stuff you get from a cow), and you'll be bound to stay slim for the rest of your life. ('It works for me' she says.). Sure, sure. She probably goes out after midnight and jogs 27 miles. The "Nerd's" love for acting has led her to run the "Elmwood Theatre Co." After years of total devotion. Hey kid we luv ya! P.S. Never stop "She boppin'" "I thought that when love for you died, I should die. Alone, most strangely, I live on."

JENNIFER KINGDON

Jen came to us just this year and has managed to fit in, even if she has had problems coming to terms with being seen in the uniform in public. The common room benefited from a widened range of music when Jen and Ruby moved in, but the other inhabitants managed to weed out most of the hard rock by the end of the year. Among other activities this year, Jen classiced and fluted her way through grade thirteen. The best way to go! Good Luck next year and forever and ever.

"Now 'tis the hour for wine, now without check
To trip it gaily, now with feasts sublime
Worthy a Salian board,
'twas time
Each deity's place to deck!"

Horace, Ode 37.

CAROLYN LAWS

A rare disease forces Carolyn to eat a raw potato for lunch each day. Diseases such as this biochemical abnormality, pictures of red blood cells, logical problems and fundamentalism (!) are some of the colourful topics of conversation brought up by this homo-sapien. Going back in time, words like BOG and BEIM come to mind.

The I.B. has also been a subject of great concern - she has been desperately serving, joining clubs, becoming cultured at the NAC - "FOR I.B. PURPOSES" of course.

"O.K. so - you've got two vectors - this is Algebra by the way - and one is heading N30°E, the other is heading W5°S, both having a value of 23.9. What's the combined cross and dot product of the two? No! NOT TWO-NESS."

No one else has been able to stand up to the rigors of Algebra.

J'te souhaite beaucoup d'chance dans le futur . . . Tsu peut tout faire si tu le veux ma vieille.

JENNIFER LEBLANC

Jennifer first came to Elmwood in grade 7. She livened up our class with her wild stories, her punk costume and her amazing card playing talents both in poker and "spit". After leaving us for Edmonton in grade 8, she missed us so much that she returned this year to graduate one year ahead. This year "Dolly" amazed us with the vast quantity of socks and slips she managed to fill her costume with. In the Chemistry lab, Jennifer "designed" a new, versatile piece of scientific equipment - a retort stand with a crucible attached to it. Those of us in Chemistry are fortunate enough to have Jennifer as a tutor because she has "already done everything before". Best of luck!

ELIZABETH MCCLLENAHAN

"Le Biss" has been here for seven years . . . seven long years. Bissy entered Elmwood with a "Bang" in grade seven. Her energetic and somewhat crazy character made her feel comfortable with the rest of the lunatics in 7T. In sports she participated in the track team, as well as being a very vocal member of the choir. Her contributions to the Friday ski days first term (1985) will not be over looked.

There is no mistaking Bissy's blond hair and Amazon-like physique which will make her number one with university men . . . which we're sure she is looking forward to.

No one can tell you more about going to Elmwood than Bissy; she has seen it all. It is her energetic, ambitious, radiant (Oh, gag me!) personality which made her a popular leader of the students and an active member of the school. These qualities are what made her a super Head Girl. She has maintained the position as a fine example for all, displaying qualities of dedication and spirit. Biss is a well rounded Elmwoodian and a great friend!

The grade thirteens have been through at least ten heart attacks with Bissy this year. Most of all we will miss the entertainment provided by Bissy at lunch. "Lionel Richie" will never be the same without Bissy singing into an old Coke can.

Aurevoir Elmwood

P.S. Remember Biss only the good die young.

ANNE MELICK

Anne has been at Elmwood for four years, but there is little to say about her . . . she wasn't around much. (oxyMORON - like single bunk beds!). After ditching her kilt for her GREEN army shorts, Anne might be found selling hardware - if she graduates from the meat counter at Robinson's General Store (the best in the whole world!!) If, and the emphasis is on if, she gets lucky, she could end up boarding with a marsupial and her blond "sasquatch", DOWN UNDER.

"Let your soul and spirit fly into the music . . ." S.E.

SARA MONTGOMERY

Sara came to Elmwood in the middle of grade 11, late as usual. Since then she has not changed much except for the growth(?) in maturity - though not much anywhere else. One thing that definitely has not changed is her hair. it's curls never lose their curl despite hours with the hairdryer. On humid days, it's volume has been known to double (or is that "dee V by dee T" according to calculus methods). Good luck fair bubble!

"Tis well to be merry and wise,
Tis well to be honest and true
Tis well to be off with the old love,
Before you are on with the new."

C.R. Maturin

"A woman's whole life is a history of the affections."
Washington Irving

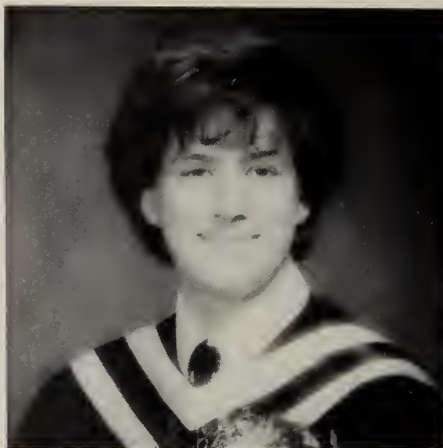

PHILIPPA SHEPPARD

Philippa has been at Elmwood for 7 years; a dedicated "Fry-ite" to the end, she was an energetic and enthusiastic Head of Fry as well she participated in choir, drama, and Reach For The Top. Last year Philly edited Samara into one of the best yearbooks Elmwood has seen. Declaring herself useless with numbers, Roget has become the literary element of our class - who can forget all the Poldarks? Tho' sometimes she gets dagger looks for her unhealthy habit of playing music VERY loud, we think her lunches will kill her before her eardrums burst. Among the PMS specialties we'll miss will be: her wisdom before a common room brawl, her suggestive pencil case/microphone, her skill or lack thereof at joketelling, her faith, and above all, her unfailing honesty and kindness to all. U of T's gain is Elmwood's loss! Best of luck, Sheppard (milk?)

"Just the place to bury a crock of gold, I should like to bury something precious in every place where I've been happy and then, when I was old and ugly and miserable, I could come back and dig it up and remember." BridesHead

LOUISA TAYLOR

Some think Louisa is one of the sanest, fairest people you are likely to meet, however we know the truth; she too has had her fits of frenzy and common room cat-fights to keep life interesting. In her three years at Elmwood, Louisa has been; a thief (Kristen's kilt), an author ("Ode to Ms. Stratford's Briad"), a pig (homo and S&V), and a friend. We will all remember with great fondness her stories, punctuated with truly Louisa bubble gestures and sound effects; who can forget Sophie or the infamous eunuch?

The other houses grudgingly acknowledge that Louisa as "Head" put Wilson House on the map with Hunger Week. A captain of the volleyball team, Louisa cherishes graduating on a winning note. Best of luck to our logical bubble-wench!

"I am a part of all that I have met;
Yet all experience is an arch where though
Gleams that untravelled world, whose margin fades
For ever and ever when I move."

"Ulysses" by Tennyson

LUCY WHITE

Grades five to eight weren't enough for Lucy - she had to come back for more! Grades twelve and thirteen were graced by her return after three years absence. Almost everything about Luke has remained pretty consistent . . . "Oh my God! Is it art? I was sure I had a spare!". Lucy's contributions to drama, sports teams and classroom discussions will be sorrowfully missed.

A junior school liason officer and one heck of a prefect, Lucy has developed new organizational skills . . . "Call the CAA; my keys are locked in the car!" Lucy has been noted for the many men in her life - "No I'm not obsessed - you are - at least I've been relieved!". Her fits of laughter accompanied by her squinting eyes and beautiful smiles will be missed.

Miranda once asked her, "Do you love me?" - Well now it's your turn to answer Lucy:

"O heaven, O earth bearing witness to this sound,
And crown what we profess with kind event
If we speak true! If hollowly, invert
What best is boded us to mischief! We,
Beyond all limit of what else i' th' world,
Do love, prize, honor you.

YASUKO SHIMIZU

These four grade twelves are graduating from our school this year. These adjectives come to mind . . . Nichèle: funny, bouncy, moody, athletic, thin, outspoken, bold, practical joker. Sarah: "Drover", quiet, a debator, a musician, intellectual, softball player, non-procrastinator, Jackie: foreign, photogenic, stylish, thin, wild sense of humour, friendly, gets lots of mail, "I Love New York"! Yasuko: "Yas", flute player, volleyballist par excellence, charicaturist, fun, a "Yoi" person, "I left my heart in San Francisco".

Debbie-so shy and quiet; outside class she's such a riot.

Camille-she's the one with plenty of ski fun.

Stephanie-what a lass is Steph Bousquet, she always laughs and says "OK"

Holly-she's always so jolly, 'cuz she's a Californian dolly.

Betsy-she who came so late, caught up fast and now goes full spate

Meg-Meghan is okay, she always finds a way to save the day.

Margaret-She passes notes every day and gets through classes in a mixed up way.

Caroline-she has earned SOME detentions, hopefully she will also learn her declentions.

Julie-a smile so bright, with blue eyes that shine just right.

Alexa-in this her second year, we found her laughter always here.

Catherine-her cheery face is light, always making the day so bright.

Jennifer-her joking is so contagious, it always sounds outrageous.

Erin-her habits seem nefarious, but she says to Tynan, "I'm serious!"

Heather-such an ace at sports that she never seems out of sorts.

Sophie-a cheeky smile that's always full of fun and guile.

Shannon-a big smile that will make you laugh in a little while.

Lourdes-sweet and polite as can be-no detentions will she see.

Laura-such a dear who always comes out for the team cheer.

Dee-always has a smile on her face, to brighten up the day; that's always the case, her class mates say.

Tynan-such a funny girl, she leaves our heads in a whirl.

Amanda: Buy a pony and a dog.

Suzan: Buy a 2nd-hand, red Tempo car for my mummy.

Diego: Buy 20 little turtles, a big aquarium and some food.

Philip: Buy an above ground pool from Canadian Tire.

Zsolt: Buy 20 parrots to talk to all day.

Chris: Give $100 to my father, send $100 to my three brothers in south Africa, buy a ghetto blaster and a proper laboratory microscope. The rest I would donate for the GYM!

Shauna: Buy a glider and fly off into the sky.

Benjamin: Buy a 2nd-hand Sherman tank.

André: Buy a 2nd-hand, antique Mustang motor car.

Samantha: Buy an antique chair for my mother so she can sit at her antique desk and calculate the bills.

May: I would donate $500 to Ethiopia and the rest would be spent on a vacation to California.

David: I would buy a BMW motorcycle. I would ride it with my ghetto blaster on the back.

Alex: Buy a diamond for my girlfriend and a diamond necklace for my friend May.

Hilary: Buy a kitten and hold him and kiss him all day.

Mrs. Gerspacher: A new Parker fountain pen with her initials on it. A 5 year supply of good vellum writing paper.

Wilson may be the youngest house, but we are by NO means over-shadowed by our elder rivals! This year Wilson proved that we're a house to contend with. As I write, Wilson is ahead in the Senior School House Games ranking by almost 20 points! Our success goes beyond 'sports, however. For our Social Services Project, we ran Hunger Week and raised $500, for CanSave.

No one can deny that Wilson has GOT THE SPIRIT!! Our energy is evident not only in the hard core Grade 12 supporters, but also in the invaluable 2-3's and our courageous faculty members. Many thanks to Laila, who kept us all in line for House Games!

Thank-you WILSON HOUSE for making '84/'85 a SUPER year!!!

Remember: WILSON IS THE BEST!

Love,
Louisa.

Wunderbar Nightingale, what a truly awesome year it has been for us. We took Elmwood by storm and have reestablished our unchallengeable reputation. Courage, stamina, skill and an undaunting will to succeed has surfaced once again and we have shown our mettle to the lesser houses. The enthusiasm in games, in the can drive, and in other activities was rewarded with success. Together, united, we have risen to dizzying heights, blazing the path for the future Nightingale. We still have to fight both to maintain our reputation and to leave the others farther behind on the road to perfection as best house.

Occasionally we showed our benevolence in allowing the other houses to win in games. We cannot prove to be tyrants, can we?

I would like to thank in particular the grade 2, 3, 4's for their spirit, and all the others who showed 'umph' in house activities. Thanks are particularly due to Nina Esrock, Lucy White and Jane Uygar.

Perserve Nightingale, and succeed!
Love,
Michèle

Dear Fry,

This has been a frantic year! What with the letters for the amnesty of prisoners of conscience, the book drive for Ronald McDonald House and raising money for the Elisabeth Fry Society Half-Way houses, we have had plenty going on. The turn-up to Games improved considerably as the year progressed as did the enthusiasm in House meetings. Special thanks to Julia Fournier as vice-head, Leslie Crate, Alexa Dodge, Ruby Eggerhos, Chase Harris for their especially high house spirit. Some are born great, some achieve greatness, some have greatness thrust upon them, and some, like Fry, have all three!

FRY RULES FOREVER.

Tons of love and good luck for next year,

Philippa.

P.S. Yabba dabba doo!

House head: Kirsten Kearsley (missing)

I'd like to thank all my faithful Kellers for their great enthusiasm and energy. Although we've only won a few House Games, we've always had lots of fun running back and fourth and screaming. Next term lies ahead with volunteer work for the blind and I hope the girls will be as energetic with this as they are with everything else.

Good luck to next year's House Head.

Love,

Kirsten.

RECORDER CLUB

Left to Right: Mrs. Kry, Christine Dawood, Michelle Riff, Rebecca Keen, Marika Farrell, Alysia Davies, Camille Beaufort, Ricarda Rudolph.

This group consists of the more advanced Junior School recorder players. The fall term saw them preparing for a performance in the foyer of the National Arts Centre, at the invitation of NAC director Donald McSween. This performance was filmed by CBC-TV.

Second term was spent preparing for the Ottawa Music Festival, where Elmwood recorder players won 3 first and 2 second prizes in the 5 classes they entered. A great year!

For the first time this year Elmwood has had two choirs. Our junior school choir has had a fine first year, performing at Parliament Hill, "High Horizons", Ashbury College, and of course Junior Entertainment. They were taped by the CBC at Christmas and heard across Canada on "The House". It will be a challenge to keep up the high standard set by this year's Junior Choir.

Once again this year the Mothers' Guild has provided the Junior Library with funds to purchase more books. In addition to this, the birthday club was initiated this year. The members of this club purchased non-fiction books to commemorate their birthday and these were added to the still small reference section of our library. This proved to be a very worthwhile endeavour.

In addition to this, a library committee was organized to look after the daily operating duties required to keep the library running smoothly.

Four volunteer mothers, Mrs. Hodges, Mrs. Lardner, Mrs. Mahoney and Mrs. Malek, spent many hours in the library, cataloguing over 400 books in preparation for putting the Junior Library into a properly Functioning library using the Dewey Decimal System of Cataloguing books.

My sincere thanks is expressed to all these people for their hours of unselfish work and good humour.

JUNIOR CHAPEL MONITORS

The Junior Chapel Monitors, affectionately known as the Angels of the Morning, fly about their appointed rounds gathering all the eager, young children into morning prayers. Their warm, cheerful smiles and melodious entreaties, "Would you be so kind as to follow me to the Assembly Hall?", were the perfect beginning to many otherwise trying days. Thanks to Camille Bouchard and Heather McGuffin.

SENIOR LIBRARY COMMITTEE

Top to Bottom:
Julie Larouche
Allison Schmidt
Carrie Arbuckle
Tara Morrison
Kelly-Ann Cook
Anamari Rodero
Stefanie Pecher
Patricia Loo

After an intense campaign to tag the senior library books, the students of Elmwood can be enthused by the amount of organization and dedication provided by the senior library committee. I would like to name each monitor, but due to the exorbitant number, I am unable to. A special thank-you goes to Mrs. Wires without whom the library would not be. I would be remiss in my duties if I did not mention Alison Schmidt, for without her help the committee would have been non-existent.

Julie Larouche

SENIOR CHAPEL MONITORS

Nicola and Jodie, our faithful chapel monitors, were seen nearly every day, hassling classes to "Put up the chairs!" Frantically trying to find out what hymn was to be sung, and racing to get hymn books to everybody, well, almost everybody. In regards to last years record of participation, it should be noted that this years' grade twelves managed to spend two full terms putting up chairs! Try to beat that girls! Thanks again, and good luck. "This year Elmwood, next year the Vatican!"

As always, both Junior dances were a great success. One was held at Ashbury and one was held at Elmwood. There was a good turnout for both. The dance committee proved to be very capable and the organization was commendable.

The 7's and 8's are looking forward to a third dance sometime in May. The 8's are angling for a "Grad" dance as well. We'll see . . .

Jennifer Blais, Elaine Stalter

POUND

Well you could say we had an avalanche of a year (and of books, and clothes and . . .). We were always mobbed by people with the same questions, "When's pound open?" or "Have you seen my . . .?" and "Can you give me change for this $20?" . . . and we have only one thing to say after our year as guardians of your lost treasures, "Finders keepers, losers weepers AND PAYERS!"

Jennifer Blais and Elaine Stalter

FORMAL COMMITTEE

Left to Right: Mme Sabourin, Anne Melick, Sara Montgomery

This year the Elmwood-Ashbury formal will be held at the ballroom in the Chateau Laurier. The tables will have chocolates, flowers, wine to go with the hors d'oeuvres, salad selection, chicken, champagne and kiwi bombs. This year we will also have a classical band during dinner and a swing band for dancing after.

DANCE COMMITTEE

The Dance Committee organized several events this year, including the Elmwood-Ashbury dances, trips (usually day trips) to Lakefield College School, and a wonderful dinner for the Lakefield Band when they came to visit. The success of the events grew as the year progressed and we hope next year's crew will carry on dancing. Good luck.

REACH FOR THE TOP

The 1984-85 edition of the Reach for the Top team was difficult to choose not because we were deluged with large numbers trying out for the five positions BUT because of the great quality of the talented few who did come forward. By late October the team was defined and spent the next weeks refining their already apparent skills. Our worthy opponents, A.Y. Jackson, proved to be a little quicker on the buzzers so that they had more opportunities to exhibit their knowledge of academic and extraneous trivia but the contest was fiercely fought right down to the last, sneaky "snapper". THANKS to everyone involved right down to our mascot, Pinky.

EVES

Sandra Delvoie and Shena Riff started working at the Hospital Louis de Montfort two years ago and later were joined by Alexa Dodge and Nila Varan. They thoroughly enjoy every aspect of their week there. They, along with other volunteers, have become experts in many fields; these include: making beds (the hospital way, please!), feeding patients, answering questions at the information desk; shredding papers, serving drinks, taking patients to physiotherapy, working with microfilms or in the lab...

But most of all as Sister Jeannette pointed out to me, they became experts in listening.

To our volunteers three hours a month may seem like a small gift but to the lonely and the sick ones a few minutes of their cheerful conversation and youthful presence represents a great deal: this gift makes it possible for the patients to go through the endless monotony of the days, and to forget their pain for a little while.

COMMONWEALTH

Sara Drover, Wendy Mitchell and Alison Schmidt ventured to the thirteenth student Commonwealth Conference from May 5-May 10, along with 110 other students from across Canada and 46 members of the planning committee. We represented the island of Mauritius. Wendy and Alison were asked to take billets from Northwest Territories, Pembroke and New Brunswick respectively - Alison taking two and Wendy one. We spent our days mostly at Carleton University but also at Ottawa University and the Parliament Buildings. We took part in various games, discussions, debates, workshops, meetings and ceremonies. We rarely had free time and by the time Friday rolled around we were very tired. However, we did have a huge social on Friday night which was the closing of the Conference.

Everyone had a great time and the three of us thank Annabelle Mandy, Elisa Campbell and especially Mr. McCabe for their help.

CASA GUATEMALA
(CASA CANADA)

Centro Nutricional y Hogar Permanente
7a Calle "A" 4-55, Zona 10 Teléfono: 62172 - 62282 Guatemala, C.A.

After hearing about the Casa Guatemala, 11J generously donated $100 from their funds towards the cause.

Dear Mrs. Gundy and the Elmwood Girls:

What a wonderful gift of $100.60 for the children of Casa Guatemala. I received the check from Heather Nesbitt upon her return from Canada.

I would like to tell you how much your contribution and others like it mean to us. We subsist from day to day counting on the generosity of people such as yourselves. Without these contributions, the children would have no where to go. You should feel proud, knowing that these little children will be helped by you to stay open. Thank you for choosing the Casa as a "good cause".

JUNIOR DRAMA

TOAD OF TOAD HALL

Working for one week on the set of Toad of Toad Hall gave me a chance to see what effort and talent went into this amazing, energetic and spectacular production. The acting, the directing, the costumes, the sets, the casting all were perfect and highly professional. The acting was of the highest calibre. Special mention should go to the leads, played by Kathleen Macauley as Toad, Heidi Staseson as Badger, Lisa Roberts as Rat and Zoe Pettengell as Mole. With help from Mrs. Chance and many other teachers, Mrs. Sheppard wowed Elmwood for three performances. Mrs. Sheppard moves to Toronto this year, and with her go our love and best wishes.

VOICES

Five intrepid girls got together to produce, act and direct this years school play. When Mrs. Scott left, there was no one on the staff with the time and energy to try to fill her place and so this very difficult job was taken on by Kirsten Kearsley. She chose the play VOICES which briefly is about five women trying to come to terms with who they are in the context of today's society. It was performed by Kirsten Kearsley as Maya, Jennifer Leblanc as Grace, Stephanie Bartlett as Roseland, Jane Basinski as Kate, and Wendy Mitchell as Erin. The girls started rehearsals in January and performed on the twentieth of May to an appreciative house. An animated discussion about the play, lead by Mrs. Barbara Leblanc, followed. Special thanks to Mr. Kearsley, who helped direct and encourage the girls. It was wonderful.

ROMAN BANQUET
ELMWOOD STYLE

The Pontifex Maximus (High Priest) examined the sacrificial lamb. Fear spread across faces: the signs did not foretell a successful event. A sigh of relief ensued . . . the animal was the wrong way round! Elmwood's first annual Roman banquet was after all to be favoured by the gods!

On March 6th, Elmwood's "gym" was transformed into a Roman "triclinium" (dining-room), as one hundred and fifty students and staff members reclined on the floor to dine Roman fashion.

First came the slave auction. Our slave-dealer, Juditha Sabourina, lured large numbers of denarii (a lot of money!) from prospective buyers as she auctioned various slave groups consisting of teachers and students. Deirdra Lacrimans and her cohorts tried to escape, only to be cruelly dragged back to the auctioneer's block. Competition was high for Mikus Hibernius McCabus and his friends. The wheeling and dealing continued even after they were bought as Ashbury boys handed over many denarii to the grade eleven buyers who had purchased the McCabus lot - those grade eleven students never miss an opportunity . . . for making money!

"Porcellus et minutal ex praecoquia" (pork with apricots), "pullus et ius candidum" (chicken in white walnut sauce), and cannelloni were some of the ancient and modern delights served to the diners. Grapes, of course, were everywhere, squashed and otherwise! Superb acrobats, an incredibly varied fashion show including punk togas, a very amusing ballet of gladiators and that marvellous, new-fangled invention of the future, the piano, offered entertainment during dinner.

After dinner, the film, "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum", based on the comedies of Plautus, a playwright of the third century B.C. provided intellectual interest. There were those, of course, who found Ashbury students more entertaining.

At 11:00 p.m., the "triclinium" once more became a "gym", with flattened grapes and broken laurel leaves as the only reminders of the banquet. It has been suggested that next year, we should forget the grapes!

If this is what mothers do, forget it!

The Neale competition.

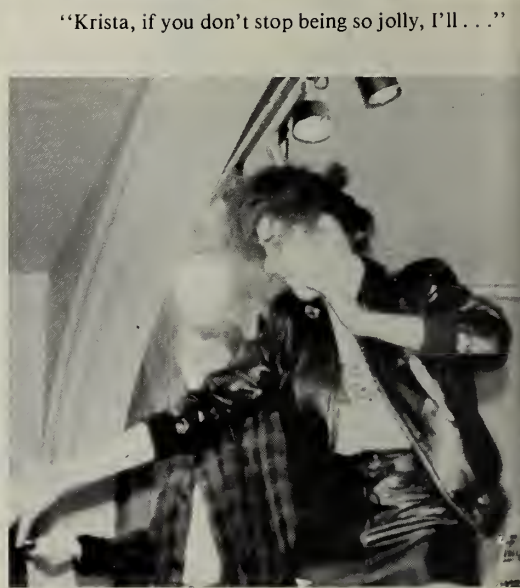

"Have you ever stopped at moments like this to wonder about the meaning of life?"

Two green peas in a pod.

"But I'm allowed to eat here!"

"Krista, if you don't stop being so jolly, I'll . . ."

Elmwood's nightly contribution to the community.

TRIPS

On September 13 a group of English students from Grades 10 through 13, accompanied by Mrs. Bellamy, Mrs. Heacock and Mrs. Hoy, left for an extended trip to Stratford, Kleinburg and Kitchener. They were fortunate to see three very good plays in Stratford -- "Romeo and Juliet", "The Merchant of Venice" and "A Streetcar Named Desire". A different but equally enjoyable part of the trip was a visit to the renowned Kitchener Market. At Kleinburg the students toured the McMichael Collection of paintings by the Group of Seven. The weekend was thoroughly enjoyed by all the doubtless a request trip next year is being eagerly anticipated.

KLEINBURG/ STRAT F O R D

LAKEFIELD

At 4:00 p.m. on October 13, 1984 we boarded the BLUE and WHITE SCHOOL BUS heading to Lakefield College School. At approximately 6:30 p.m., after not being able to stop for refreshments (food and restrooms), we were surrounded by a thick, thick fog. Yet with our reliable driver, we arrived at Lakefield College at 9:00. Our spirits were not dampened and despite the fact that it was zero vision, we managed to meet Price Felipe de Borbon.

The evening was just starting though. Oh! No! "We cannot drive back to Ottawa in the fog." Luckily our Head Girl's brothers, David and Robert, were super kind and welcoming and had us stay overnight in their living room, den, kitchen, recreation room, and . . . bathtub. After more tribulations and many stories told late into the night, we made our way back to Ottawa and arrived without further incidents nine hours after our expected arrival time. So much for tight working timetables . . .

ST. DONAT

For the third year, HHHELMWOOD, was a participant in the Interface program in the village of St. Donat. Some fondly refer to it as St. Donut . . . do nut ask why.

Three days of non-stop skiing, History lessons, Geography, jaunts to the village, refills on "croustilles" and chocolates, Coca-Cola and Seven-Up . . . and back to the Carnaval, talent shows . . . copious dining and sub-zero settings. We shone in every area. Anne-Marie Fournier even won the Talent Competition.

There were no dislodged knee-caps, no broken bones, no tree-encounters, no frozen toes, no lumps or bumps, no utterly embarrassing linguistic faux pas. No, everything went off without a hitch.

At last count, many 25¢ pieces have been left behind the candy dispensers at the Auberge. All those calories were certainly well spent since every ounce of energy was needed to keep up with the hectic pace set for us by Interface.

Our trip home was uneventful except that we had the occasion of meeting a group of Lakefield boys who had been in the same program, at another inn in St. Donat. We all enjoyed meeting this crew.

Our students in St. Donat represented their school extremely well, all the while enjoying not only a few days away from regular classes but a different form of learning.

Need we say more? We certainly could. It was a super excursion. Thanks to the whole crew.

BROWN

Brown Lake 85 with the greatest of fun,
Even though we hardly saw the sun.
We hiked through the snow,
With our cheeks all aglow,
And were sad to depart when the trip was all done.

Huguette and Natalie, Mr.

Gilbertson too

Gave talks and games and so our knowledge grew.

All food arrangements were made by Mrs. Wires

Who kept our clothes dry by many fires.

Our thanks go to all mothers

Who gave cookies, squares and others,

Together with three kinds of delicious stews.

Mrs. Van Aerssen and Yang served our food piping hot

And for all their help we thank them a lot.

This trip is now but a memory, however, one that we will treasure for a long time. Thanks to Mrs. Millington, who very efficiently made it all possible, we undertook an enjoyable educational tour of France. March 10th we landed in Paris and spent the afternoon walking down the Champs Elysées and visiting the Grand Palais with its extraordinary exhibition of French Impressionists.

Next day we rode in the bus towards the Loire Valley and discovered some of the jewels of Renaissance architecture. Then back to Paris for a hectic week of sightseeing and shopping. Finally our five days in Gascony. Le Gers, Auch -- these names now have a special ring for all 23 members of the group. March 23rd -- After a delicious "last supper" in Toulouse we bade farewell to one of our hosts, took the night train to Paris and later boarded the plane back to Mirabel.

If you ask the girls, they will tell you it was SUPER! Our students really co-operated to make it a big success.

KINGSTON/FOLEY MT.

In May, Grade 7 went on a 3 day excursion to Foley mountain and Kingston. At Foley Mountain the students carried out science field work. Whilst in Kingston the group visited various places of historical interest.

The expedition was great fun and the students produced the best talent show ever!

LATIN

On May 4th Pamela Horne, Stefanie Pecher, Fiona Doetsch, Monique Hanrath and Cathy Lougheed, participated in a Classics Conference held in Alliston. More than four hundred students from Ontario attended the event.

During the day, students were involved in different types of academic, creative and athletic competitions, whilst in the evening, there was a banquet and dance.

The small but mighty contingent of Elmwood students won six prizes. Next year, we intend to sweep the board clean!

CHALK RIVER

Chalk River takes approximately 3 hours to reach by school bus. However, for the grade 11, 12, and 13 students who went to the Nuclear Power Plant on a day trip, it was worth the wait. We first looked at a few displays and then attended a powerful lecture on nuclear energy by Frank Finley. By the way, God's a nuke. We then were put into groups of 10 and given a tour of the plant, which includes a hospital, 32 buses (in the event of evacuation) 5 generators (4 of which work and 3 of which we saw), libraries, a cafeteria and more! The tour was wonderful, as the guild was able to communicate with both scientific idiots and geniuses. It was a great trip and will hopefully be repeated. Thanks to Miss Blair and Mrs. Boyd who took us.

QUEBEC CITY

On May 27, thirty-six grade eight students, two staff members and a volunteer mother boarded a Voyageur bus for, what turned out to be, a most interesting history lesson. With our ever present, always witty tour guide, Michael, we changed the course of history by reliving the battle on the Plains of Abraham (the French won this time), visiting such historic sites as La Citadelle, L'Assemblée Nationale, La Promenade des Gouverneur, Le Couvent des Crulines, Haute-Ville et Basse-Ville, where we walked and walked and walked and . . . (did you know that all the hills in Quebec City only run one way -- UP?)

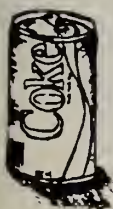

We dined at some interesting spots, both in Quebec City and on l'Ile d'Orléans. We danced the night away on a boat in the St. Lawrence and roller skated to "Madonna". We had many laughs, some of them were a real "pane"! Who could ever forget that one?

I think everyone would agree when I say that our 4 days in Quebec City were filled with a wide variety of exciting, interesting and enlightening events and a good way to say good-bye!

While everyone else at Elmwood was hard at work writing examinations, the grade five/six class was off to Montreal for a tour of the old city and an hour at the planetarium. We left very early on June 7 on the train. We took the subway over to the old city and visited such sights as the Chateau Ramezny, BouSecours Church, Notre Dame and the Dow Planetarium. Our traditional tea at the Queen Elizabeth ended our day and we arrived back in Ottawa at 7:45 p.m.

OTHER TRIPS

The second term at Elmwood saw the inauguration of a Friday ski programme. Everyone in grades 5 through 13 was invited to join in the eight week experience which included an hour-long lesson as well as free-skiing time. 90 girls took up the challenge to acquire new skills or perfect old ones. So, every Friday evening, Camp Fortune hills came alive with the sound of giggles.

Junior School students got a head-start - leaving Elmwood at 2:30 p.m. to be ready for a lesson at 3:30 p.m. Seniors had to wait a bit longer, leaving school at 3:00 p.m. to meet their instructors at 4:30 p.m. Teachers learning alongside their students became a familiar sight. The staff at Camp Fortune expressed their admiration for the enthusiasm, spirit and ability of the Elmwood contingent.

By 7:00 p.m. Junior School students were back in the bus, ready for the ride back to school and awaiting parents. At 9:00 p.m. the Senior School group would leave the mountain, appropriately exhausted. What a wonderful way to end the week - a guaranteed good night's sleep!

The MacDONALD Era

THE TREE OF KNOWLEDGE

"Mrs. Macdonald, alias "Bunty", was born in what is now a historical landmark!

Mrs. MacDonald's inside and out of school activities had to be censored by the editors and are not available for publication. However, we did find out that she has a great admiration for Dr. Seuss, Liberate and his mother.

Mrs. Macdonald believes that women should have more rights than men, and she owns a pet rock named "Herbie"."

Samara 1978

Mrs. Macdonald (Ellie) retires this year from teaching Math at Elmwood for 19 years.

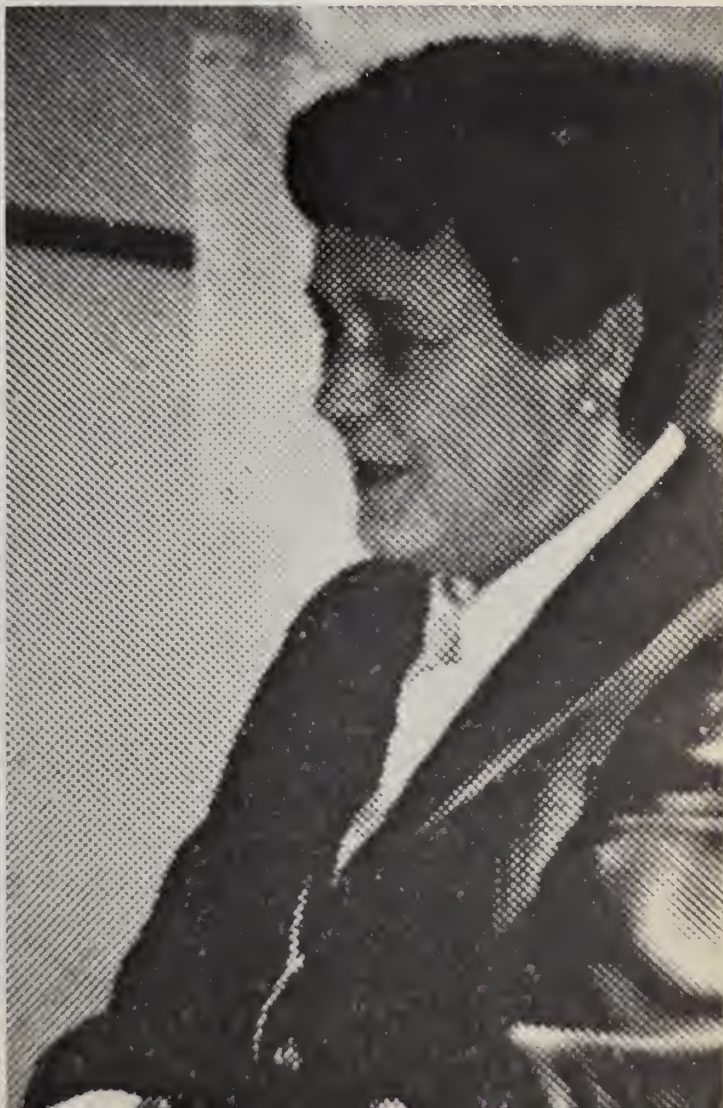

Born and raised in England, Mrs. Macdonald inherited a double component of strong character from a sea-captain father and a mother who much of the time had to cope single-handedly with a large family. During World War II Mrs. Macdonald was in the Services when she met her Canadian husband-to-be, Barry. Though she still maintains an indelible English quality, she wholeheartedly has taken up being married to a Canadian, living here and bringing up a family of four sons and a daughter.

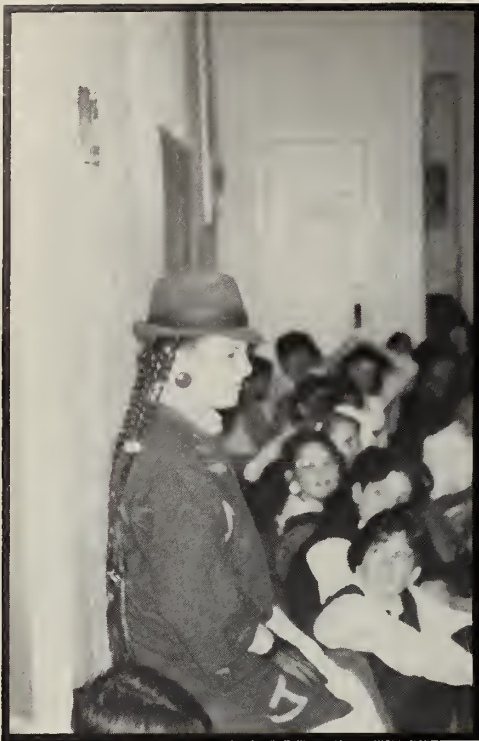

Anne, her daughter, is now married and living in Colorado. She recently had a baby girl. From Grade 10 to Grade 13 she attended Elmwood. The Macdonald tradition is being carried on at Elmwood by her son, Keith, who ably stepped in mid-year to teach philosophy when Mrs. James went to England.

How is it possible to describe the qualities of one who is so solidly and steadfastly part of an environment that it is difficult to see her in isolation, for this is truly the case with Mrs. Macdonald: she actually IS part of Elmwood. It is to be wondered how many struggling Math students of the past and present have been quietly and lovingly helped out of class time, made to see a light in the incomprehensible maze of Mathematics but also a much brighter light in terms of character and commitment. How many members of staff have been helped by her unerring sense of when to be sympathetic, when firm and when commonsensical and when humorous. How many times have class parties or staff parties cluttered up her house and gathered round her swimming pool. We thank you, Ellie, for being your own unique blend of moral strength, fairness, wisdom and humour.

Men can be divided into two general classes: the givers and the takers. To add another platitude, "All give and no take is no good". Mrs. Macdonald, Ellie, we all thank you for what you have given us of yourself and ask you to give a little to yourself now. Selfishly we still hope that you will visit us and we hope to visit you.

"Ce n'est qu'un au revoir" because we all refuse to say goodbye.

Boy George

Step In Time . . .
- Ode To Modern Man
The fire flickers
Flames of time
Embracing the Past.
Music of modern
Pounds of hardness
Of today in Vulnerable
Ears.
A mind screams with
Images of yesterday, today;
The contrast, similarities
Presenting evolution's Agony.
No escape, now, for
Lonely sinners
Lost in a constant
World of Self
Incomprehensible.
Daily activity
Treads in platonic
Love affair
With standard;
Passionate desire is Forbidden amongst
The march of Equanimity,
Of living.
The fierce wind
Blows stagnation
Around,
Making fire flicker
Under burdening
Sensation:
A putrid squall
Alight with disillusion
Kindling sparks
In the gloom
Of life's

AFTER

Black Ruin.
Devastation.
Buildings crushed by a hammer from the sky.
A skyscraper stands in its crumbling greatness.
Broken bridges hang suspended over watery canyons.
Cars dented and smashed lie overturned on the streets.
A hum of silence hangs in the deserted streets.
Large-scale panic,
As masses of people had screamed
And ran blindly to unknown destinations -
Gone.
People unknown lay strewn in the dust.
School is out forever -
A child's dream gone mad.
The birds have gone,
Gone with rational thinking and hope.
An eternity of uselessness in which to live a life
Which no longer holds purpose,
Stretches out before me.
It is so unreal.
So hard to believe,
So hard to understand,
Why such an intelligent being as man,
Would destroy such greatness.

TRAGEDY

Two minutes to go
The crowd breathless with anticipation
Would they score?
Suddenly a loud roar emerged from the right
Side of the grandstand
Had they missed something?
Had someone scored a goal?
They say in disbelief as flames lept up
This grandstand had been there for 77 years
Nothing would change.
People began to run,
Clothes alight.
Policemen doing their best to save them.
The heat was becoming unbearable
4 minutes later it was all over.
Everything razed
Those who remained were left to count the Dead and Injured
And still no one believed.

BEING GREEN

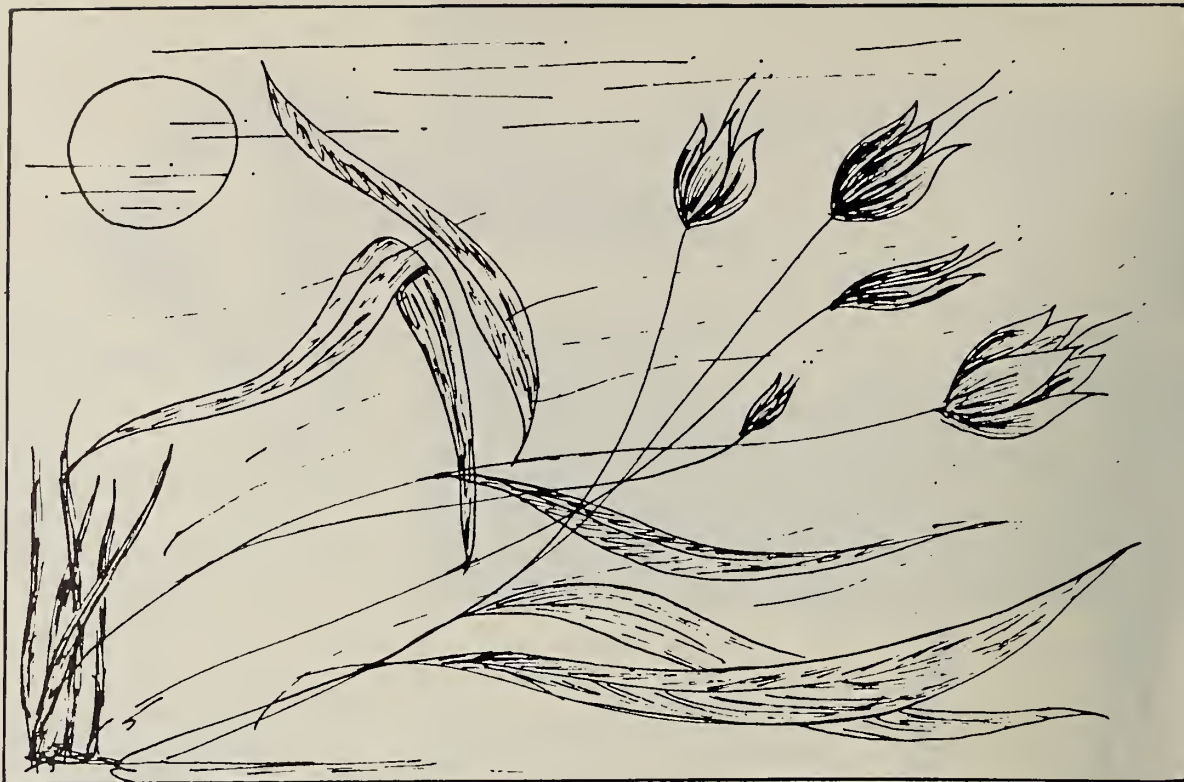

It's not easy being green,
Every Elmwoodian knows what I mean,
No penny loafers,
Or "Vans" checkered bright,
No nothing like this . . .
Until five at night.

It's not easy being green,
To always keep things nice and clean.
To have polished shoes,
And shirts of spotless white,
These things you're not rid of . . .
Until five at night.

It's not as bad as it may seem,
It's not that bad being green.
It's having your classmates,
And very good friends,
And with them at your side . . .
Who needs those silly trends!
(Until five at night!!!)

NIGHT

When darkness fills the air at night,
A thick, dark cloak covers the sky,
A silver moon floats on high,
And tiny, golden stars twinkle and shine.

A wary owl flies across a field,
Toads and frogs croak in the trees,
The grasses move back and forth
With the sweet, thin breeze.

Small mice run through the grass,
Crunching old, dry leaves,
The trees' branches swing with the wind.
And loons dive into the lake's deep waters.

In the high and distant hills
A wolf howls with sadness,
Pointing towards the full, bright moon,
Hoping to rejoin his pack.

IN MY LANE

I used to walk on it, through the years, and its seasons;
Watching a bronzed leaf drift slowly downwards.
Running on mounds of crunching snow,
Or dancing between dribbling rain drops,
In my lane.

A leisurely walk where time fell behind.
No rush or bustle, of the fast living world.
The deep green of a thistle between the gravel,
Left alone, to do as it pleases,
In my lane.

The lane, though short, was my own.
I could walk on the worn, grey gravel
Watching a squirrel pause to sniff.
No cars, or people, but quiet happiness
In my lane.

One day, under a gleaming blue sky,
Cars and children filled the air; angry buyers,
A black parking lot, a radio
A tree chopped down, a dead squirrel,
In my lane.

THE BLACK CAT

The black cat
Slithers in the night,
You see her once
And then she's out of sight!
She is fast
And careful,
You better watch out,
Her name is trouble.
She'll knock over your garbage
And shred your screen door,
She'll beat up your guard dog
And then look for more.
When day light comes
She'll be let in,
While her owner
Has no idea where she's been.

The puppy, frisky, frolicky
Cheerily jumping round
One ear up and one ear down,
Ball in his mouth
"I want to play!"
He seems to say.

A little flick
Of his tiny tail,
He licks your face
With worried eyes
"Are you alright?"
He seems to say.

And then he yawns
A puppy yawn
Curls up at your feet
And dozes off . . .
"What a long day!"
He seems to say.

THE KING AND THE JESTER

"What is life?" said the king to the jester.

"Life is living, living is life", he replied quickly. The king peered down from his heights,

"What do you mean by this riddle? I ask you a simple question, I expect a forward answer."

The jester skipped round and round the king, bantering and singing, "It's not my answer that is the question, but your question."

"Jester, you tease. Stop dancing around me."

"Sire, I demonstrate: life is a circle."

"A circle? Do not be a simpleton."

"Simplicity of a circle? It is you who taunts", answered the servant. "But such is life: jesters jesting jesters - the humanity of living; the circulous cashe of searchers hiding their quest."

"Ha! I hide nothing. You make me laugh."

"Laugh, my king, for it is a bridge of survival."

"A bridge of survival? What do you talk of now?"

"I speak of faltering footsteps, forward treading, to reach those of another."

"Footsteps reaching . . . What else will you tell me?", muttered the king.

"The polarized steps finally juxtapose at the center, circling it with humanity", was the answer.

"I am already at the center, of my life and my kingdom", he reminded.

"To find the center of life is to find a balance, but to claim it found is to lose equilibrium", the jester responded.

"You talk round and round, in too many circles!"

"As I have told you, that is life. Its circumference grows as you search for the balance, the center of the circle."

"Surely you mock me, for I understand little."

"I mock not, I search to explain. My quest gives me growth, I understand, then I can give love. You are a fellow jester. We must love."

"Love. You are becoming sentimental, foolish." scorned the king.

"Love is the enemy of folly. Emotion, sentiment are its tools. Only a fool denies the workshop of life."

"If you made logic, I would not be confused!"

"Life is illogical. Therein lies a mysterious beauty.

The black hole of confusion carves a well for understanding. Thus you already have the foundation for living."

"Can that be true?" asked the king.

"Take on the responsibility for searching and life will bear her gifts; love, seek, hurt, cry and then discover -

In this way a jester becomes a king . . ."

ABRIDGE OVER TROUBLED NOVELS

When you're weary, feeling small,
When tons of boring pages
are before your eyes,
I will condense them all,
I'm on your side,
Oh, When times get rough,
And the last chapter just can't be found,
CHORUS: Like "abridge" over troubled novels, I will cut these down (2X)
When you're down and in,
When you'd kill to be out on the streets,
When lit. piles up so high,
I will comfort you,
I'll take your part,
Oh, When classics heaps,
And high-brow lingo is all around.
CHORUS REPEAT (2X)

ELMWOOD

Smiling faces that jostle me in the corridor faces that I've seen many times before faces that I'll see again

Bound together, like a tightly knit scarf
By the uniformity of their garb

An ancient, rambling, slightly dilapidated building that gives something of itself every time
I pass though its open doors

Towering trees in small fields surround it
They are engulfed by vine-covered fences

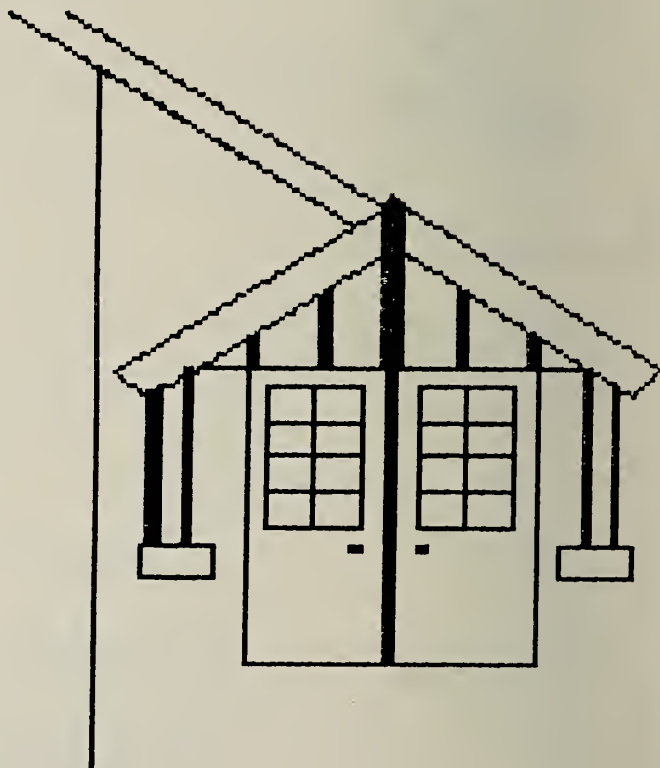

They make me come back, again, and again.

SPRING IS COMING

Spring is coming,
It's in the air,
The sweet smell of spring,
It is everywhere.
Mountains of snow,
Melt into seas of water,
The birds are back,
From where it's warmer.
The heart in every squirrel,
Is filled with joy,
As in the heart,
Of every girl and boy.
The cats are out,
So birds beware,
The dogs are out,
So both take care.
The flowers are blooming,
The kids are having fun,
Winter is gone,
And spring has come!

THE WOLF'S FOREST

The water laps quietly at the rocky shore
the tall grass rustles in the cool wind, trees at the forest's edge wave gently,
Birds twitter as dawn breaks.

A fox barks
in the distance.

A red squirrel chirks as it comes out of its hole and pops back inside when it sees me.

The wind blows the fur on my back
as I trot silently down my trails
I belong to the forest
It belongs to me.

THE OWL

Flying free on the wind
Soaring, gliding in the dark.
My great, silent wings not making a sound
As they carry me down to my prey.
My talons sink in,
Scratching, tearing apart my prey
I am the hunter of the night
The Owl.

TO THE SQUIRREL

It's the last I'll see of you, my furry friend.
Autumn has finally come to an end.
So swiftly you scamper,
So furtively you leap
Across the land where the willows weep.
You're the master of acorns,
Cheeks bulging wide.
Could there possibly be a few nuts inside?
Somehow, by sight, or by smell, or by sound,
You're able to find every nut on the ground
But where do you take them?
Where do you go?
'Ere the first blast of winter comes with the snow.

THE MIRACLE

'Come on, we will go roller-skating' called John. 'No, I like to work in my garden' said Ann. She had started to enjoy planting little seeds and seeing them grow.

All of a sudden, Ann noticed an old lady leaning at the fence watching her. She looked weird, in grey clothing, white hair and with a big nose. She almost looks like a witch, Ann thought. 'You are really busy' she called to Ann. 'Come, here are some seeds. Plant them, and soon you will see a miracle,' and off she went.

'What did the old lady want?' John asked. 'Oh, she gave me seed and said I would experience a miracle'. 'Those are regular apple seeds' said John and left laughing. 'Some miracle'.

Ann planted them and watered them. The next morning she woke up to find a fully grown apple-tree in the garden. 'That is funny alright' said John, 'but I imagine a miracle to be something different. Some miracle'.

Soon apples grew, and they grew faster than those on other trees. The tree had such big branches low down that it was a perfect tree to climb around in and play hide-and-go-seek. John liked the tree very much, but he still didn't consider it a miracle.

Eventually Dad said: 'It's time to harvest'. They all gathered baskets and picked apples. It took a long time to pick them all. Practically the whole house was full of apples. They had never seen so many apples in their lives. But, more importantly, the apples were juicier and sweeter than anything they had ever tasted. John said: 'Yes, they are better than any other apples I tasted, but it still doesn't add up to a miracle. Some miracle'.

Winter came, and they hung a bird-feeder on the tree. The children watched all the birds enjoying themselves on the tree. They had never before had so many birds in their backyard. 'It's pretty neat', John said, 'but I don't call that a miracle'.

Spring came with lots of rain, and soon the tree was full of lovely smelling flowers. The children were back playing in the tree. Dad even hung a swing on it. John loved every minute of it, but he still didn't admit that it was a miracle-tree. But they couldn't imagine life without that tree anymore. To Ann it really was a miracle.

THE MAGIC OF THE LOON

Swishing through the clear, still water,
Dusk descending upon you like a grey veil,
You pause, and hear it.
A lonely haunting cry,
Echoing through the foothills around you.
You see, floating motionless on the water,
Staring at you with piercing black eyes,
A loon,
Your mind no longer in control of your body,
You paddle towards it,
Its eyes never leaving yours.
Suddenly, as you near it, it rises
With an ear-splitting scream,
Its great wings thunder about your head,
With an immense crash, your canoe tips,
And you splash into the icy water,
With the loon's black eyes still piercing
You sink, helpless, into the obscure darkness
Of death.

THE FORGOTTEN DOLL

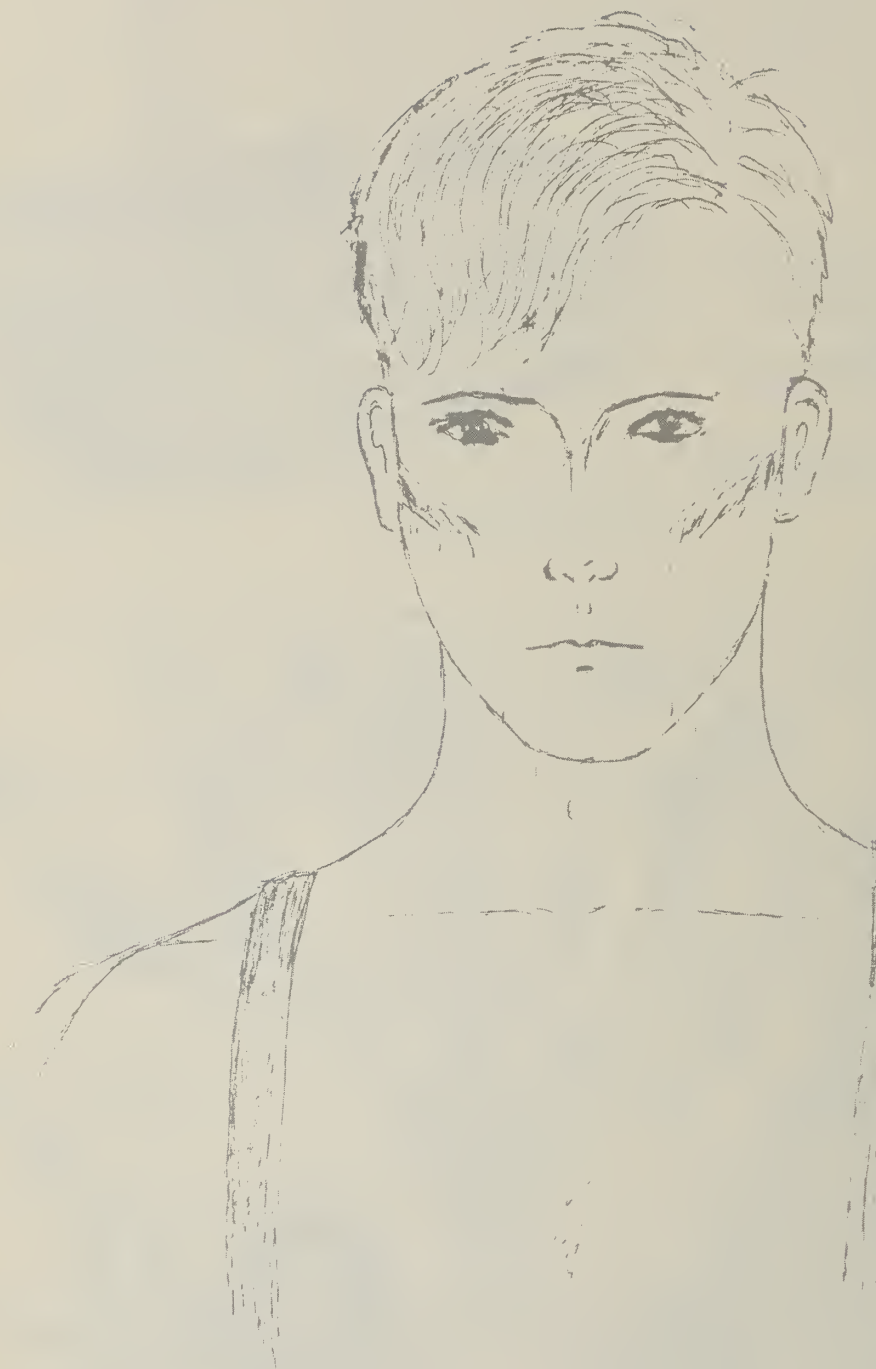

Lost and forgotten
Captured in the strands of endless time.
Old, decayed, fragile.
Covered in damp and stringy cobwebs.
What was once carefully woven lace is now nothing.

Never to be used,
Never to be seen,
Never to be touched,
Never to be loved.
Once bright and cheerful,
Now faded and dull,
Dead.

THE DANCE

He came alone,
She stood watching,
Staring, hoping,
Praying
That no one would Join him.

She found out
His name
And repeated it
In her mind
It was music
To her ears,
And he stood alone.

She just didn't notice
That no one went
Over to talk to him
Male or female.
He was lonely,
He asked no one to dance
And no one asked him.

She didn't want to notice.
He left early.
She had been watching
His every move
But she didn't have the courage
To talk to him.

Instead, he left.
Went away without a trace.
And he hadn't had
A good time.
Only then did the girl realize . . .
Neither had she.

MAPLE TRANSPO

Every year, in June
My Mother
Pulls a red maple
From the young forest
At Meech Lake, P.Q.,
Pots it in dark and springy loam
And attempts to Transport this cornelian
Jewel to the arbutus
Shores of British Columbia
By car.

Mid way
Via a Saskatchewan sky

In a space near Summerberry,
A warm Prairie wind
Unfailing appears
Travelling Immigrant
Pirates the moisture
From stalks and leaf
And then blows by.

Undaunted, my Mother
Journeys on
Ferrying a shrivelled twig memorial

For burial amid the shinning kelp
From an Island in the Gulf Stream
Near Salt Spring, B.C.
This year, maybe,
It will be different.

AFTER A MOVIE (1907)

We leave at dawn while
The city collapses behind.
See the trail
Marked by ruts
And great gross wedges
Cutting the wheels of Fortune
To a new birth
To a new beginning,
A new birth
In the black
Virgin earth of the land.

I listen
The slow dance of rippling oxen
Trundling the months
Of a verdant Spring,
Hauling the wagon
To a sort of place
Far up the trail of the blurry
Future.
My city grows young in my dreams
I cry silently, mourning
The passing of my
Young and Glamorous
Life

Why do we go?
A fuzzy dream of a new outline
A new land
Somewhere beyond this Safety.
Was it only yesterday?

Hard
Months away
We search
For a steel stake
Which marks the receipt of our Dollars. Ten!
Proof of purchase.
160 acres of flat
Treeless land.

I watch him,
Reverent as if in church,
Joyous before his bounty
While I attend the funeral
Of my future.

Such work
Not fit for city hands
Or fashion from the past.
Our neighbors
From another land, across the ocean
Pause to greet and
Chatter with us,
Help to build
A sod hut with
Blocks of dirt and call it
Home.

My dream grows fainter
The city fades in coloured shadows
Babies come
And grow like prairie seed
Beside our crops
Surprised by talents to
To magnify our own.
The one, a genius with the new machines,
the other
A master with the soil
And the harvest
The pride . . . the joy
Of harvests!

And suddenly
Suddenly there is no
Rain
The sky a cloudless
Jewell of blue perfection
For months - for years
This unkind cover
Masquerading as an
Opal gem
Denying us her clouds
Brings human tears to shed
Unnoticed on the blowing
Dust, mirage-like
Clouds across a barren land.

THE 30'S
Our kin,
The one
A genius with machinery
Exits for the city
And paying work
And disappears within the technicolour dream
To reappear in dreams
Of nightmare!

Our neighbors vanish,
Stealthily
They slip into
Another dream but we remain with ours.

Dark clouds form of tension
Worn out dreams
That need the summer rains
To prosper
Days and months of desperate watching
Fade to years of Almost ten!

A decade dies
And then he dies
His dream unconquered.
Yet the earth gives back its own
The rain tears stream
The lightening shrieks
And the prairie
Flowers, as jewels around the
The City.

THE DREAM CHILDREN

It was night-time, of course, that was when I dreamed. In my dreaming I was the lord of my land. I created at will and banished the same, and supreme power was mine. Fair princes begged me to deliver them from their evils; they had undoubtedly been trying to save some damsel-in-distress when they had come under these spells and, I always freed them after a short lecture on the infidelity of distressed damsels. Sometimes the things I had created escaped my control and even threatened me. Fortunately they could not stand against the passing moment between dreaming and waking when my power was at its peak; then nought could stand against me.

Only once did I ever meet with something not of my own creation. It was an eagle and he said he had come to speak to me. I greeted him with civility and offered him a place to rest, and tea with pastries. He declined my place of rest, explaining that he found a rock much more comfortable and suited to his build, then thanked me for the pastries, commending me for my manners.

We were sitting on a stretch of road, one that continually appeared in my dreams. There was a bank, of about three feet, to the right, heavily bordered with trees. To the left was a sharp incline and apparently limitless flat plains.

The eagle sipped his tea graciously, then carefully placed the cup on a pink and blue checkered table that had appeared from out of nowhere. He leaned forward to look me in the eye and said very distinctly, "You are special."

I was slightly taken aback, but he had not finished. He went on to explain that I had a gift, a gift of supreme control over all that was not of my native world. "You are of the kind that we call the Dream Children and I would like to offer you a life in another world, a better world, where your powers will be recognized . . ."

Here I interrupted him, asking if it was true, that I did have supreme power, then why did I have no power over him?

He looked at me a second, then shrugged, his feathers rustling, "I am of your world," he said and, for a moment, a tall English gentleman was sitting where the eagle had perched.

I gaped, not believing my eyes. He asked me rather plaintively, "Will you come with me?"

I thought about it - about never seeing my mother again, no father, friends, grandparents, teachers - no real reaction to the loss of these realities but then . . .

"No," I said quite firmly, "No, I cannot come with you. We are going to McDonalds tomorrow and I have to be there for that."

I still remember, to this day, seeing him flying away sadly shaking his feathered head, remarking distraughtly, "McDonald's, McDonald's, I simply cannot believe it, a destiny thrown away for McDonald's . . . Why do they send me on these cases?"

SEASONS

Spring.
The sky is gold and gray.
A breeze ruffles the daffodils,
Blowing my hair.
Light and cloud.
Chaos.

Summer.
The lake is blue, the sky is blue.
The sunlight creeps over the mountain,
Like a golden ribbon,
The green mountains surround me.
Stillness.

Autumn.
The sky is azure, sharp, clear.
Lying among red leaves, I see my friend lean over me,
Laughing at me.
Leaf fights ensue.
Contentment.

Winter.
The sky is a frozen pearl.
The snow reflects the sky.
Night as light as day.
Iron trees, silent snowflakes.
Unreality.

Another year has gone.

A COLD DAY

As the dawning sun rises o'er the field,
The snow sparkles in the light.
The cream-capped trees
Groan in the chill morning air,
And bow down painfully in their plight.

Skiers upon Suicide Hill stand frozen
Taking in gasps of the chill morning air.
And bobsled racers with
Their crafts at the ready,
Then over the frozen crust they tear.

The afternoon breeze stings the nostrils & ears
The scent of burnt wood fills the air.
And music is played from the house on the hill
The children's laughter rings out loud and sharp
And the whole world shivers as supper draws nigh.

The frigid earth shudders as the sun sinks low
The snow turns red, from the sun's bright glow
The crust gives way as the people trudge home
Weary and icy from their day-long romp,
Heads bent to fend off the white blowing snow

SICK?!

Mom? I feel sick.

Pardon? No, I'm not trying to get out of school; but the way I feel now I don't think I'll be able to manage a full day.

No! I don't have any tests today.

And yes I've done all my homework.

How do I feel sick? Well I really can't describe it but . . .

I don't look sick? Well I think it may be an inside sickness. I hear there's one going around.

What? No I said an inside sickness is going around; my head is fine. It's not going around yet; but I think I feel it starting to.

I CAN STAY HOME!!! I mean I can stay home? Well I really don't want to miss anything like school work, but . . ., if you insist, I will.

WHAT? Go to bed? But I . . . How much longer 'till school starts? Twenty minutes? I think bed may be a good idea; for at least twenty-five minutes.

Oh, one more thing. May I watch T.V.?

No? Well it was just a suggestion 'cause Tommy Curtis had this inside sickness and his mom let him watch T.V. for the whole day and it made him feel a lot better.

I still can't watch T.V.?

Well, I think I'll go to bed.

Oh; do you mind if I read? Okay, thank you, I think it may help me to feel better.

Pardon? I can do anything I want as long as it doesn't bother you and doesn't include the T.V.?
Okay, you won't even know I'm here.

You know, I'm starting to feel a bit better!

Catch up on my school work? I'm not feeling THAT much better Mom, you can't rush these things.

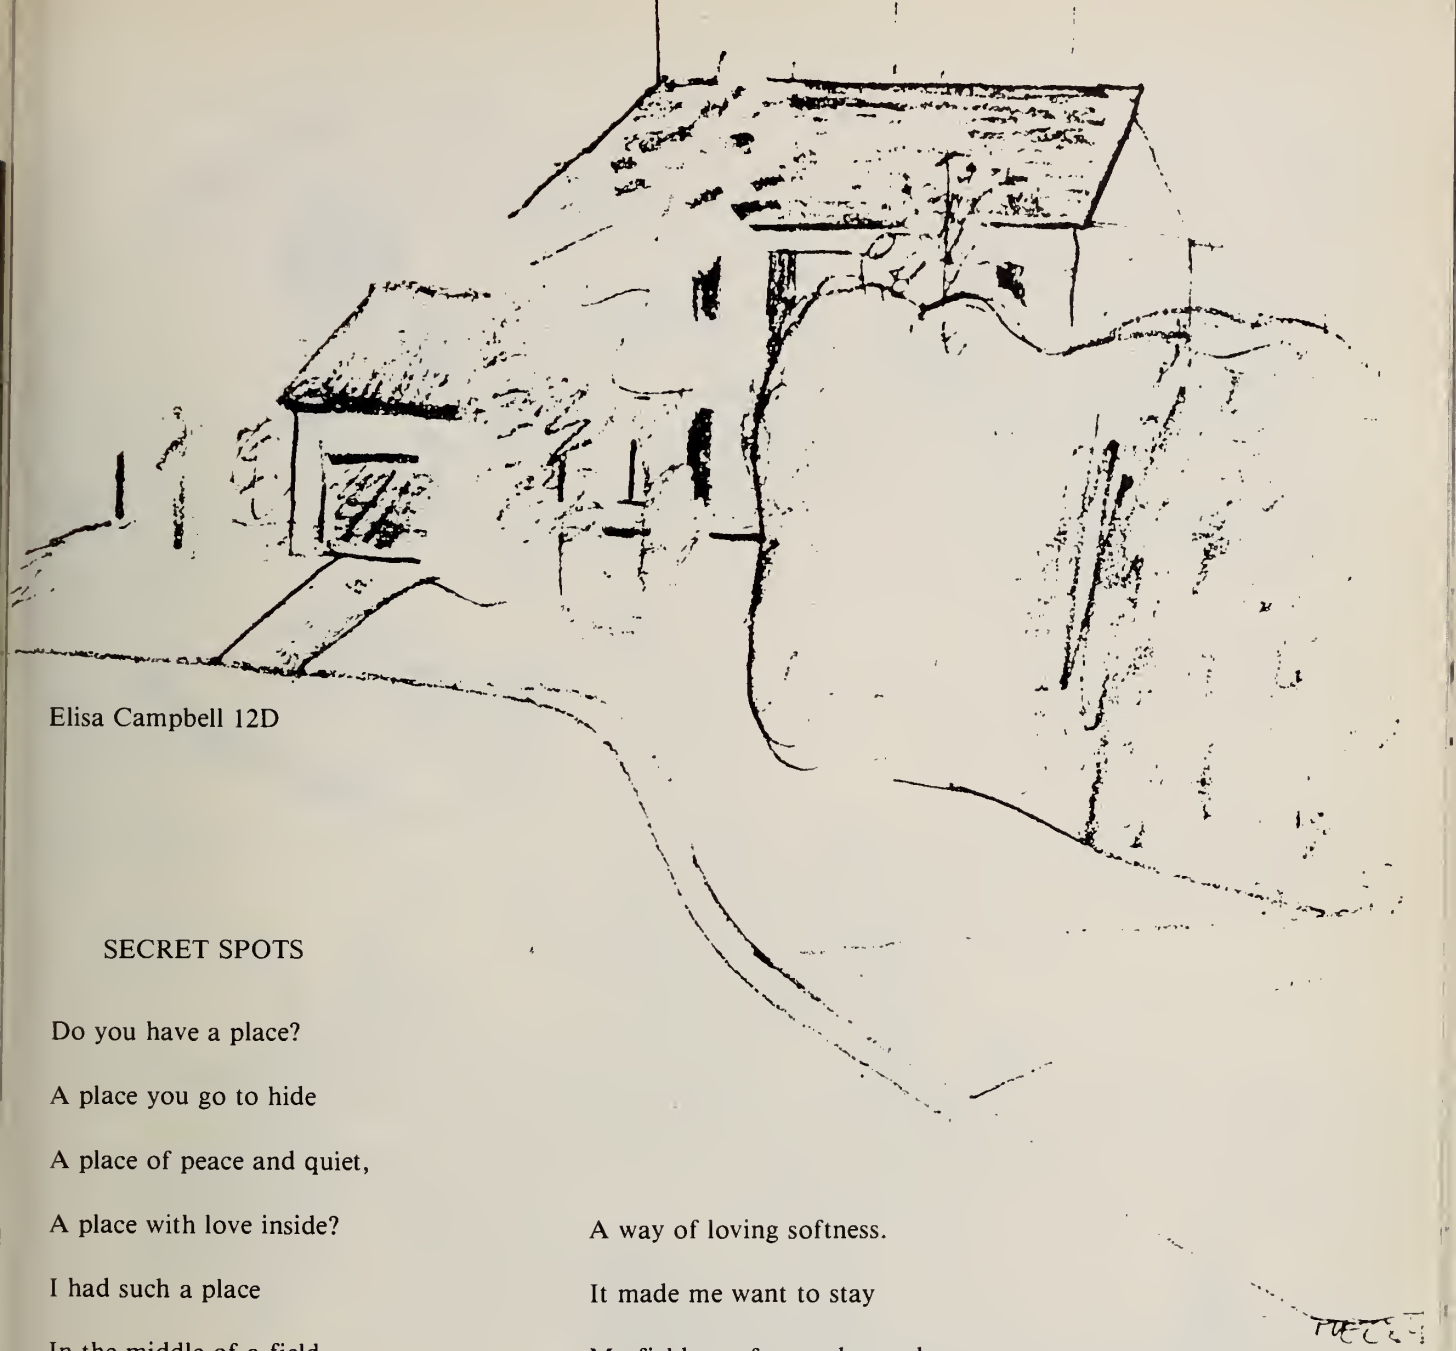

How long has school been going on just out of curiosity?

Ten minutes!!!

What? How can I jump around and still not feel too good? I think it's this inside sickness; it's really weird.

. . . You know mom? I like staying home with you; it's just too bad I happen to be sick.

SECRET SPOTS

Do you have a place?
A place you go to hide
A place of peace and quiet,
A place with love inside?
I had such a place
In the middle of a field.
It held my deepest secrets
And never did it yield.
This place of sweetness,
It loved me, in a way.

A way of loving softness.
It made me want to stay
My field was free and proud,
Then man took it away.
The field was sold for houses;
the beauty's gone today.
I can cry and no one knows
They sell my secret spots.

LIGHT IN THE DARK

The coming event is awaited,
The expected happiness draws nigh,
Bringing poignancy of pain and pleasure,
Shown up in a strange light.

Pain seeks depth unexpected,
An understanding unwanted,
Fragments are dispelled extrovertly,
Shrapnel to the mind and soul.

Beauty is seen paradoxically,
It's delicate fragility alight,
A special beauty transcends,
With the glorious growth of sight.

Light, darkness curiously bound,
In mirrored reflections of mystery,
Life in complex patterns coloured,
A multi shaded portrait is painted.

Raindrops from the sky
Makes me and you want to cry
Softly falling drops.

There is a lot to pick up
Until it's all white.

THE EMPEROR PENGUIN

Waddling along the frozen ground,
On a remote island,
Huddling together, silently watching,
The cold water at their feet.
Standing with heads held high,
Knowing they are above all penguins.
The yellow of their necks like a shiny wreath.
The first penguin slides into the water,
Then the rest follow reluctantly.
They glide over the icy water,
Some floating and some plumbing
The dark depths of the ocean to find food,
As the sun sets they swim
To the other side of the island
To find shelter in their once forgotten cave.
They clamber up the icy shores,
Once more they have reached their destination.
They stand in the cave soundlessly huddled together,
Waiting patiently for the sun to rise again,
And begin a new day of sun and sea.

Thanksgiving must be one of the best holidays of the year, along with Christmas, March break, summer vacations and any other holiday that gives you time off school. But Thanksgiving can be viewed from many different perspectives. You may go home this week-end and congratulate yourself for having finished a full month of school, or you may just think about it, take two aspirins and go to bed. You may, if you are of the younger party, be wondering what to be for Halloween, and some of us may be thinking of ways to make the next 8 to 9 months more challenging, while some may just go and get another two aspirins and go into solitary confinement until Monday just when the subject is brought up.

But to me, Thanksgiving means food and family because that is who I spend most of my weekend with. My Mom and Aunt and Grandmother, and anyone else who gets stuck with it, start preparing the food two days in advance. They spend the first day preparing it and the second day cooking it. My Mom is still used to having 25 to 26 people for dinner, but now that a lot of my older cousins have grown up and moved away, our numbers have slimmed down to 17 to 18, but she still cooks the same amount which means we are still usually having turkey for dinner at Halloween, which by that time means we never want to see another turkey again.

Then, after everything, Thanksgiving dinner finally arrives. The adults and everyone who can hold his or her fork properly and refrain from burping during grace sit at the 'big table' as we call it, while the rest of us are put at the rickety old card table with the uneven leg. Let me just say that sitting at the card table is an experience to remember. The big table has a lace cloth, candles with designs on them, and separate little lace mats for the food. The card table has a green garbage bag carpet and a mangled candle in the middle. Why I am still at the card table I do not know. I learned to eat with a fork a couple of years ago. Last year I almost had a chance to join the adults, but my Aunt got married and my older cousin brought her boy friend, which makes the seat at the card table mine again. I asked my dad when I would graduate to the more 'senior' table, and he said that I would have to wait until my milk spilling average was at least 2 to 1, which meant that I would be sitting at that table until I turned grey. So I turned around, sighed, and carved my name in the table to make the best of it, which made matters worse when everyone found out. I said grace wrong and ate the rest of my dinner in the crawl space.

The next day our guests all depart until Christmas, when the festivities begin again.

SPORTS CAPTAIN'S NOTE

This past year has not been an exception to the rule that the talent and potential of Elmwood teams is formidable. We may not always win, but the spirit and enthusiasm shown by all our teams is enough to make us #1 champs!

The basketball team showed great skill on the court throughout the season, and the same can be said for the tennis team, and both senior and junior volleyball teams. Our senior soccer team showed great improvement by reaching the quarter finals in their division. Also, special mention must be made of our cross country running team, softball team, junior soccer team and rowing team. Congratulations to all our athletes and the best of luck next year!

With the help of the fantastic weather, which we had, Sports Day this year was a true success. Congratulations to all four houses. You were all winners!

I would like to express my special thanks to Julia, Rachel, Jane, and Laila for all their help with house games.

Finally, a very sincere thank you to the Phys. Ed. staff, the Prefects, and especially to Mrs. Neale, who made my job so much easier and so very enjoyable.

- Diane Drouin

CROSS COUNTRY TEAM

This year's Cross-country team consisted of (L to R) Chase Harris, Nicole Jackson, Paula Jardine, Elisa Campbell, Susan Westley, Monique Hanrath, and Fiona Doetsch. Together, under the faithful coaching of Mrs. Neale, we faced the frigid mornings, endless miles and treacherous hills of the two city meets. We would never have survived without the presence of Fat Alberts! Our Nikes hang waiting for next year . . .

One fine Saturday morning in the middle (end?, beginning?) of September, Elmwood joined in with other Ottawa schools to run in the annual United Way Fun Run. Some of us walked (a looong way!), some of us crawled (right, Dzi!), some of us watched and some of us actually jogged. But we all contributed something to the event (even if it was only "pigging-out" on subs) to support the United Way.

BASKETBALL

These pictures are NOT indicative of the togetherness or the imagination of this year's basketball team . . . we really don't mind having our pictures taken together!!! This year saw another winless season pass us by, but as always our performance improved steadily. If you glance at the pictures you will note that many, if not all of the players are potential members of next years team. After a long summer of constant practice we GUARANTEE some wins next year.

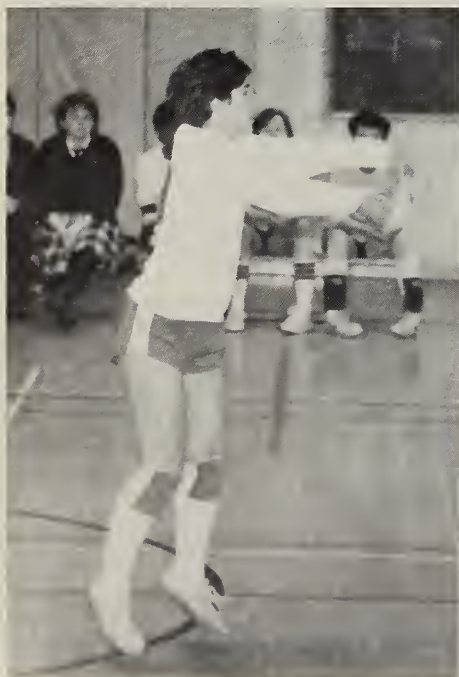

SENIOR VOLLEYBALL

As the picture shows, our major accomplishment this season was learning how to be a team. That doesn't necessarily mean being able to win, but we certainly learned how to laugh - and infuriate Mr. McCabe! Through all the pain of broken wrists, two point losses, bruised knees and frequent disappointments, we still came out on top. We finished the season with a bang, with a long awaited and much deserved victory over Champlain. Many thanks to all our cheering squad, and most especially to the ever faithful Mr. McCabe.

Throughout their season, which comprised of six full games, the Senior Junior Volleyball team improved steadily.

Their teamwork and confidence led them to a clean sweep win of 15-1, 15-3, 15-0 against the surprised Champaign high school. The season ended with a dinner at I.P. Looneys for the two coaches Ms. McIntyre and Mrs. Neale.

Many thanks go to Ms. McIntyre and to the support of Mrs. Neale while she was having her baby.

JUNIOR VOLLEYBALL

The Junior volleyball team displayed an unequalled degree of eagerness to play and to improve their skills. Unfortunately, the team missed the tournament because of our production of Toad and Toad Hall. Thank you for your dedication girls.

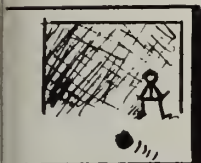

JUNIOR SOCCER

The Junior soccer team had a hard-working and successful season culminating in a tournament at Brewer Park in October.

The team displayed excellent skill development as well as a commendable combination of spirit and sportsmanship. Well done, girls!

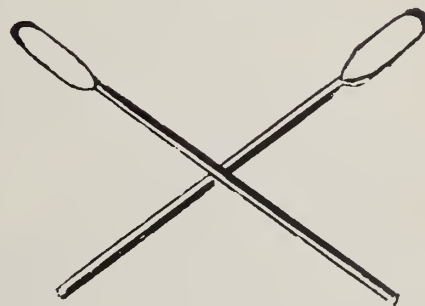

S O C C E R

This year's senior soccer team has a very interesting season. We started off well with a win against Philemon Wright! The score was 2-0 with Diane Drouin and Carol Hodgson scoring our goals. We did not win any of the remaining 5 games; however, we did hold Lisgar (the best team in the league) to a 2-0 win. Throughout the season our team numbers dwindled from 18 to 10 as the team got riddled with injuries. We had to cope with pulled thigh muscles, back injuries, wrist injuries, cleat marks (Jane's leg may never be the same) and 4 sprained ankles. Thanks to Jane Basinski and Chase Harris who joined our team when our numbers were down. Team members include: Captains Diane Drouin and Elisa Campbell, Jane Uygur (our diving goalie), Annabelle Mandy, Valerie Sumner, Resa Solomon, Carol Hodgson, Jennifer Cohen, Michele McLaughlin, Anne-Marie Fournier, Stefanie Pecher, Shawn Belton, Louise Hayes, Nicky Cole, Suzanne Scott, Tegan Schioler, Siobhan Donoghue and Alex Stevens.

ROWING CLUB

On Tuesday and Thursday afternoons during the fall and spring, a dozen intrepid Elmwoodians could be seen testing their nautical skills against the vagaries of wind, weather and river current at the Ottawa Rowing Club. Under the expert guidance of Barb Clark, a competitive womens high-weight rower, and the watchful eye of Miss Eaman in the coach-and-rescue boat, the girls worked at mastering the difficult art of balancing a "four" or an "eight", coming up the slides and following the cox's orders -- preferably in unison! On days of excessive wind or inclement weather, skills were developed on the ergometer (rowing machine) and the oar positions on the dock. Miss Eaman hopes that some of the "regulars" (girls rowing since last year) will be ready to form a competitive team to participate in school races next year. See you on the river . . .!!

SOFTBALL

This year Elmwood's Softball Team made it to the Havergal "Raggedy Anne" tournament. Good weather prevailed as we left Ottawa slipping out of the Elmwood parking lot and down the 401 to Toronto. Game day was filled with brilliant sunshine, enjoyable company and plain good fun as the girls from Elmwood showed that we have more to be proud of than just our spirit. Playing six games in eight hours proved exhausting for all teams but we managed to more than hold our own. Our record of three wins and three losses tied us for third best record of the seven teams entered. We lost to the eventual champions by one run, a homer in the last inning. This effort and result certainly shows that Elmwood teams are capable of competing and succeeding against schools of similar size and numbers. Congratulations girls on an outstanding effort and result! We'll see you next year at the "Raggedy Anne" tournament.

TENNIS

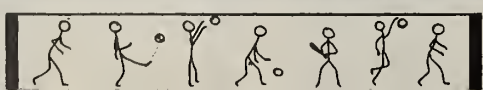

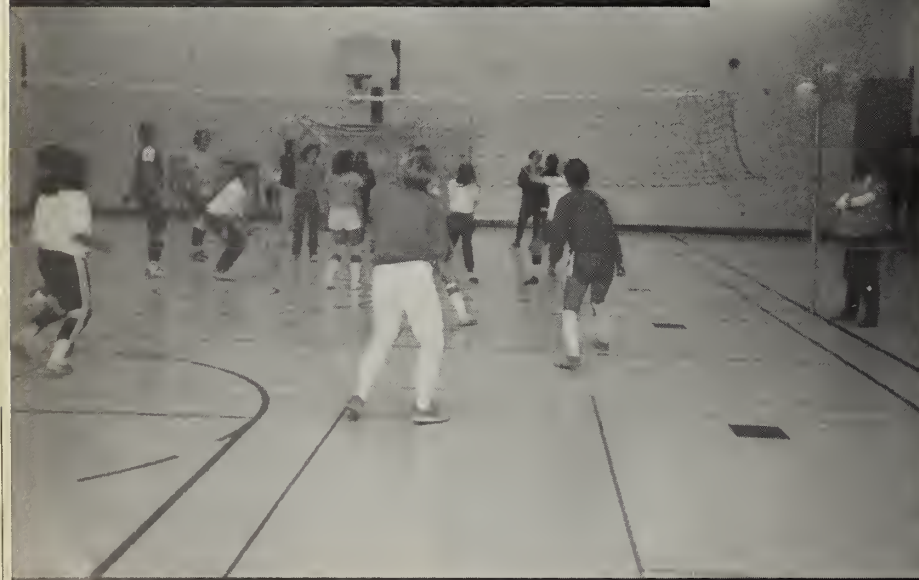

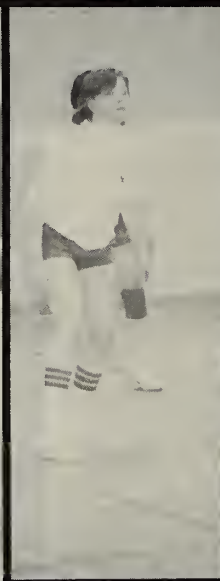

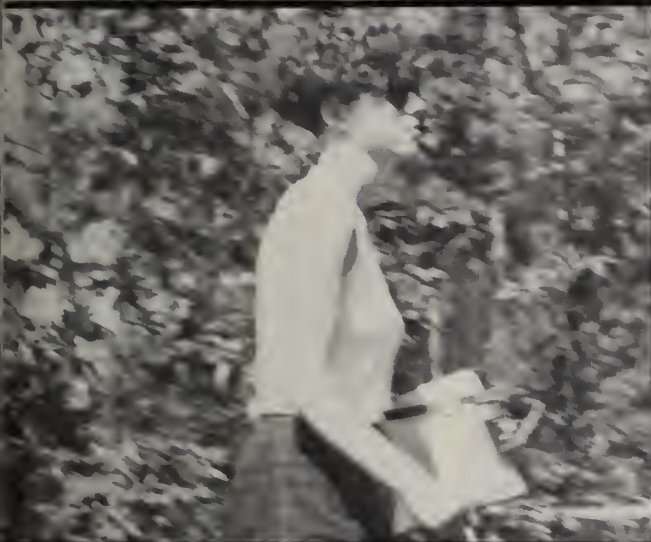

Elmwood's future Navratilovas and Evert-Lloyds hit the scene in September to star in the Ottawa Interscholastic tennis season. We had a great time tossing balls and not hitting them! Seriously, the team did really well considering the clash with basketball! Many thanks to (L. to R.) Mrs. Neale, Monique Hanrath, Chase Harris, Jane Uygur, Diane Drouin (a.k.a. Di's taxi service), Jennifer Cohen, Julia Fournier, Barbara Toth and Elisa Campbell. Special thanks to Mrs. Knapp for always being there.

DAY'S WORK?

Mr. Chairman, Members of the Board of Governors, Mrs. White, Staff, Students and friends of Elmwood:
This night is one that the graduating class and I have been awaiting for a long time. It marks the end of a very important stage in our lives.

As a member of the class, I am honoured to be its representative tonight to tell you a bit about our times at Elmwood, and to bid you farewell.

This year had been very successful both academically and extramurally. Three grade thirteens have completed requirements for their I.B. diplomas, and others have worked hard towards certificates.

In the fall, the prefects held a Hallowe'en party for the juniors. This was a big success, except for the fact that some ties were lost - never to be found - from the scavenger hunt.

Spirit Week was a lot of fun for every one. I think all students particularly liked being able to change their uniforms in some way or another; as we had a theme for each day. We shall never forget "Rock Star Day" when Willy Nelson and Julio Iglesias came to share their talents with us.

In April, some senior girls, under the direction of Kirsten Kearsley, one of our graduates tonight, presented a play called "Voices". This was entirely a student production and demonstrated what hard work can do.

May ended with Sports Day, after which so many students thanked us; making all the work worth while.

Despite all the fun times I have just mentioned, work does enter the picture! Elmwood's focus is that of giving each student the best education possible. This is good, because a good education enables you to worry about conditions all over the world!!!

Seriously - Elmwood's relatively small size and caring staff promote good learning habits.

There is a saying that for every person willing to teach, there are thirty not wanting to be taught.

I do not believe this to be the case at Elmwood, for the teachers show the students how to learn and how to organize themselves, thus making it a lot easier to concentrate on the essence of what is being taught.

While Elmwood has physically changed over the years, her spirit has always continued to grow stronger. It is through this spirit of love and enthusiasm that new students are so easily able to feel welcome.

As this night is to celebrate graduation, it would not be right to go on without describing some of the feelings that grade thirteen students have during their final year at school.

Our stomachs often churned as we wondered whether or not the universities would accept us with only three maths, a physics, a chemistry, and five languages!

I have written to several universities - so far the one with the best rating has 2500 boys to 132 girls!

Although my class has changed somewhat over the years - people have come and gone - it has always remained one formed by strong individuals.

Dear classmates: I am so very grateful for all the support you have given me this year and for all the friendship and laughs we shared in the past. Congratulations! - You are ALL "True Ambassadors of Elmwood".

To the prefects; my heartfelt thanks. You made my final year at Elmwood a very happy one, and you calmed me down when life got hectic.

To next year's Head Girl, Diane Drouin, and to next year's prefects, I wish you a wonderful year.

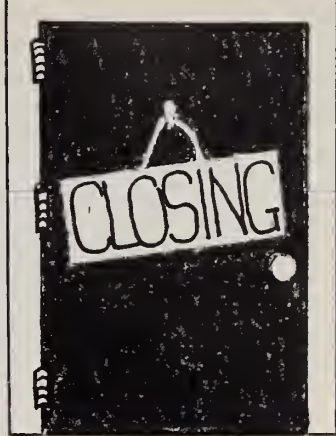

Diane, you are a super person, and I am sure everything will go smoothly for you. Just remember to work together always - not just when things get desperate - but from the start. That way, the hardest times become the most fun!

On behalf of the girls graduating tonight, I would like to thank all the teachers. "With every privilege, there is a responsibility to ourselves". We have had the privilege of attending a school with teachers such as yourselves, and it is our responsibility to ourselves and to our school to do the best we can in the future.

I would like to give special thanks to Mrs. White, Mrs. Gundy, and Mrs. Sigmund for all their guidance and help throughout the year. Finally to all of Elmwood, as Lord Tennyson wrote:

"I am a part of all that I have met;
Yet all experience is an arch wherethro
Gleams that untravell'd world, whose margin fades
For ever and for ever when I move".

Thank you and God Bless.

MOTHERS' GUILD

PURPOSE

To assist the school wherever possible and to raise funds for the general benefit of the students and the school. Over the past year the Mothers' Guild has donated $14,351.00 to the school, allocated to the Junior and Senior Libraries towards the cost of the Junior School Climbing Frame, Montessori Mathematical Equipment, more Computer Hardware, a Camera and equipment for Samara and the Camera Club, China for use on social occasions, the Grade 9 Entrance Scholarship Runner Up and Merit Pins presented at the Closing Ceremonies.

MEMBERSHIP

Every Elmwood Mother is a member of the Mothers Guild, with an Executive of 15 to 17 members consisting of the President, Vice President, Past President (our Representative on the Board of Governors), Secretary, Treasurer, Clothing Shop Convenor and Members at Large. Major Fund Raising as for the Building Project is not part of the Mothers' Guild mandate.

ACTIVITIES

The Super Sale And Raffle

Held every April, this is our main fund raiser. YOUR SPRING CLEANING IS OUR SPRING SALE. In April 1985 we raised $11,000 from "junk", "treasures", plants, books and baked goods, all donated by you and from the sale of Raffle Tickets. We take this opportunity to thank everyone in the Elmwood Community for their help in 1985 and look forward to your help for and with future Super Sales.

The Clothing Shop

The hours are 3.00pm until 5.00pm each Tuesday during term (the Shop is located by Mrs. Chance's office) and at other times during the year of which you will be given advance notice. Used uniforms (in excellent condition) are sold on consignment but the majority of items are new and cover a wide range from socks to kilts. All profits from the Shop are put back into the school by the Mothers' Guild. New items are sold only as a service to the school. No profit is made from them.

SOCIAL EVENTS

The Fall Welcoming Coffee and Dessert party for Mothers of new students, is sponsored by the Mothers' Guild but we are in attendance at all functions, lending support, catering, pouring tea and generally being of help.

SINCERE THANKS

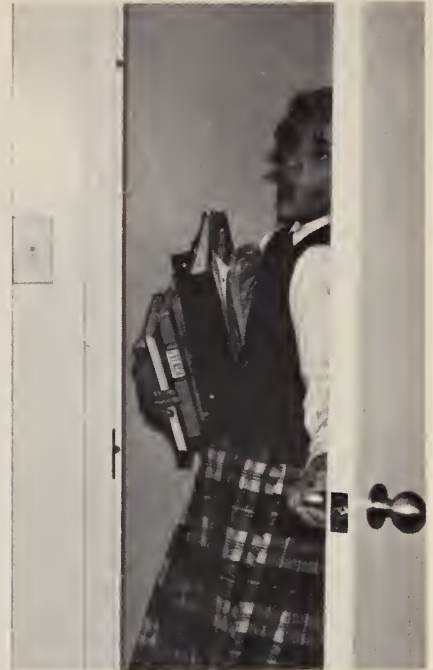

For donating the Raffle prizes for the Super Sale go to: NORDAIR, CN HOTELS, Michael Bedford Photography, Carriage Industries, Mrs. Holmes, Mrs. Ans Smith, Mrs. Margaret Laws, Donna Kearns Antiques and Textiles, Country Clover Craft Shop, Zip International, McIntosh and Watts, Paradis Restaurant Supply, Mrs. Carolyn Adams.

"Tell her I'm sick!"

"With a little Neet and you'll fit right in."

"Oh, sorry, don't mind me."

Escape from Elmwood.

"Classes? What classes?"

"Mmmm, jello, my favorite!"

"Detentions? Good joke, man."
